Arkansas College. Fayetteville's first institution of higher learning. Founded in 1852. It may be aptly called the Mother of the University of Arkansas. Through this school, one of the state's earliest and most worthy, the folk of Fayetteville and Washington County came to know the values of higher education, and consequently stood ready to bid high in order to secure the State University for their locality.

Placed on what is now known as College Avenue, the school gave name to Fayetteville's oldest and most beautiful thoroughfare.

DEDICATION

Presidents build universities. Others merely shape them, merely attach themselves, merely fill the space opened by the administrative leader. A despot, and in many cases a severe one, the American university president remains, in most cases, the final protection, the stern though conscientious father of his institution.

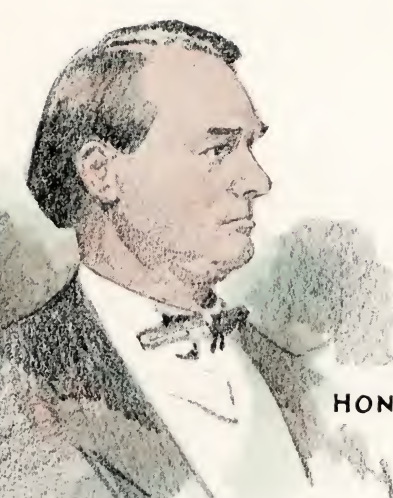

To nine men, all presidents of the University of Arkansas, in order to revive honor due them, to declare honestly their preeminent function of creation and their burden of responsibility in forming an institution this book, the thirty-fifth edition of THE RAZORBACK, is sincerely dedicated.

FOREWORD

Founded in 1872, when the period of popular education was yet unknown, the University of Arkansas was one of the first, and, at one time, the fourth largest of the state universities.

With such a background of age and historical involvement the institution, naturally, has become the setting for many deep-rooted traditions, both gravely historical, on the one hand, and youthfully frivolous on the other.

To catalogue and record, on the sixtieth year of its existence, the historical and traditional attachments of the University of Arkansas is the purpose of this book.

The editor has attempted, particularly, in the illustrations and descriptions of the theme, to remain as closely as practical to authenticity of detail and incident.

During the Civil War, near the year 1864, according to tradition, a formidable phalanx of heavy cannon was trained by the Federals upon the town of Fayetteville from the present site of the University.

Today the R. O. T. C. unit peacefully drills, and students casually saunter and play on the very spot where once so grimly stood these instruments of war.

ADMINISTRATION

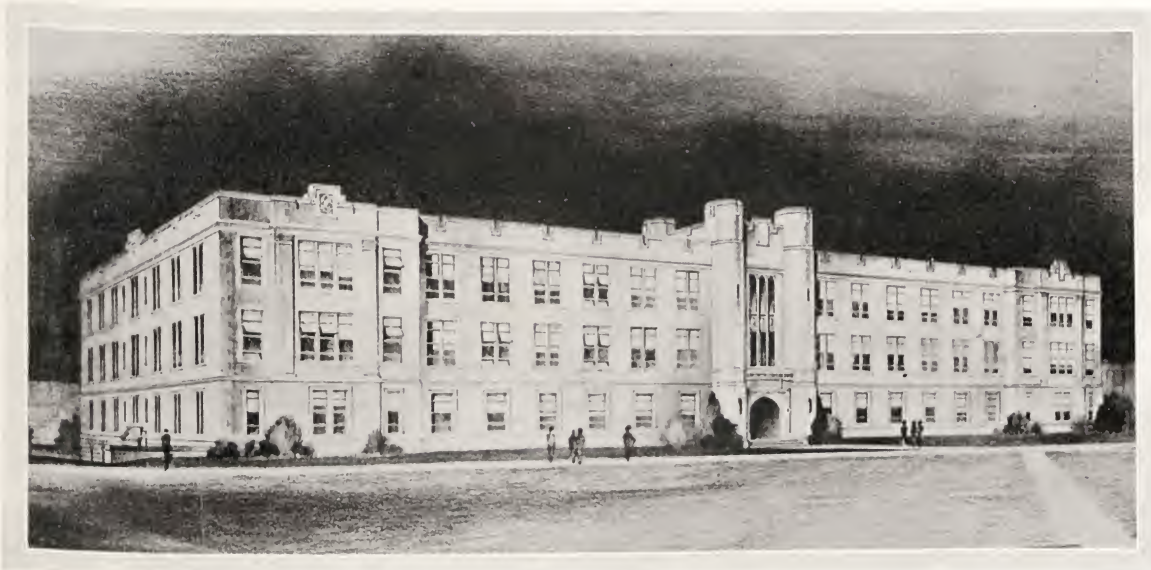

EXCERPT from the History of the University of Arkansas, page 62:
 "Whereupon," states the minutes of the Board of Trustees, "by unanimous vote of this body it is declared and ordered that the Arkansas Industrial University be permanently located at Fayetteville, in the County of Washington."

Thus by placing the highest bid, $130,000, the people of Fayetteville and Washington county, by authority of the board, secured, permanently and without question, from competing localities, the University of Arkansas.

Lafayette Gregg, a citizen of Fayetteville and a Justice of the Supreme Court, whose picture is at the right, assumed a major part in the initiative of obtaining the University for Fayetteville and later in the supervision of building University Hall. Gregg, perhaps more than any other one man, has contributed to the foundation and development of the University.

UNIVERSITY

PROPOSED SCIENCE HALL

PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

PRESIDENT JOHN CLINTON FUTRALL
UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS

THE birth of the state university idea, and the rise and growth of state universities in America, constitute one of the most remarkable developments in the history of education. In the first half of the nineteenth century there existed a few institutions which were known as state universities and which received some help from the state government. It was not, however, until after the passage of the Land Grant Act by the Federal Congress in 1862 that the real development of the American state University began to be accelerated. While some of the great state universities of the United States are not land grant colleges, — that is to say they do not comprise as a part of their organization the state agricultural and mechanical college— without question the impetus that was given to the higher education of the masses of the people by the federal land grant act has done more than any other one thing to increase the development of all state universities.

The state university campus is a place where people of all places, of all political parties, and of all religious faiths meet upon a common ground. The state universities as a class have done more to bring higher education within the reach of the masses of the people than any other influence. In most of the states the state university is the dominating institution of higher education.

The University of Arkansas, while founded later than many state universities, and while for the first thirty years or more of its existence being a small and struggling institution, is a typical example of the manner in which American state universities have served their constituencies.

In these trying times that the nation is now facing, the state universities will help to carry on the torch of learning. They will suffer from reduced incomes and they will be unable to make improvements and to carry out expansions which they have been contemplating, and which would be for the benefit of their people. But with the aid of their loyal faculties and their devoted alumni and students they will maintain their services to the public on the highest possible plane, and when the clouds that temporarily obscure the sky have rolled by, they will be found to be in the future, as in the past, among the guiding stars that are leading America on to a greater destiny.

DEAN OF WOMEN

DEAN MARTHA REID

THE office of dean of women owes its existence largely to the complexity of modern college life.

When women first began to go to the college seventy years ago, the question which troubled their friends and neighbors was whether they could succeed in college study, and it was usually the girls with a thirst for knowledge who broke down the barriers of custom and prejudice and forced their way into what was hitherto a man's world.

Today the situation is entirely different. It has become fashionable for the high school girl to go on to college and the butterfly and the grind, the rich and the poor, the strong and the weak, the brilliant and the dull come trooping into our universities and colleges each fall with very hazy notions of what it is all about.

And so it becomes the duty of the dean of women to assist the members of this heterogeneous group to adjust themselves in such a way to the world of college life that they may emerge from four years of university training with a balanced development of character, intelligence and power.

To contribute as she is able to this transformation is the task of the dean of women.

DEAN OF MEN

WHEN a certain event seems to be followed inevitably by a certain resultant event, we associate the theory of "cause and effect" with these two events. If, for example, a book is released from the hand, it falls to the earth. Here the force of gravity is the cause, and the acceleration of the falling book is the effect.

In some cases both the cause and the effect may be understood; in other cases the cause may be understood while the effect may not; in still other cases only the effect may be understood; and in some, neither is understood. Consequently, in speaking of this cause and effect relation, we can not absolutely state that one will always definitely follow the other, but from our many observations of nature we can imply that nature will always act in the same manner when the circumstances are the same. Two circumstances, time and place, do not enter into this relation.

Here at the University during the past two years, the workings of cause and effect have become very evident, though in this particular relationship we have entering into it the varying equation of the individual student, and nature has never made this variable into a constant. For this reason, while we know there must be a cause for the very evident effect on the campus, we can only guess as to what it is.

Although I can not be certain as to the reason for the development of this so marked and so worthy effect upon our student body, I do know that it has made our students more serious, more studious, and more sincere, and that this change has been a very decided one for the better.

I wrote in the 1926 Razorback, "Youth is an unknown book and the chapter you read today tells you nothing of the chapter you may read tomorrow . . ." Today we are reading the final chapter in the college life of some of our students, and we are pleased to say it is as we would have it; as we have striven to make it during the past four years.

DEAN J. C. JORDAN

"If you will look over this booklet of information, Mr. Brown, I think you will have no difficulty in seeing yourself through this Master's Degree business. You will note in registering you are to confine yourself to two subjects, subjects for which you have had sufficient preparation in advanced undergraduate courses. You will note that you can not be admitted to candidacy for a degree until after you have proved your ability to carry your courses with satisfactory grades.

You will note that the preparation of your thesis is a most important matter, that you must select your subject with great care, that you must study your problem to discover what it involves and give attention to your method of solution. You will note the comprehensive oral examination which occurs near the end of your course after your thesis is finished.

Follow the directions in this folder meticulously. You will discover that we are trying to accomplish for you two objects, the acquisition of information in your chosen field of study, and training in the methods of independent study and research."

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

THE College of Arts and Sciences serves two distinct types of students: Those who are preparing for entrance into a professional school and those who desire some insight into the fundamental principles of the major divisions of man's knowledge, such as natural science, social science, literature. The emphasis in both cases is upon principles rather than practical applications, though there is some combination of both. The end in view is a certain degree of understanding of the physical, social, and emotional world in and about us, with such mastery of our environment as this knowledge may give.

SCHOOL OF LAW

DEAN J. S. WATERMAN

THE School of Law entered on its eighth year with a marked increase in enrollment. When sixty students registered in the fall the Law School passed from the status of a small law school into the group of state university law schools of normal size.

With the increased enrollment and the constant growth of the law library, the additional quarters made available in the fall of 1927 became crowded. Facilities which appeared to be adequate for a number of years have become, to some extent, insufficient.

In 1931 the Law School offered its first summer courses. It is hoped to offer in the future a greater variety of law courses, many of which will be of interest to other than law students.

The Law School, in addition to its work on the campus, has continued to keep in touch with the profession over the State by its law bulletins which contain discussions of legal problems of state interest. Though the Law School is only a few years old, many law graduates are located in the State. Their continued success at the bar and in political life has been a source of much pleasure to those interested in the development of the school.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

THE major function of the College of Education with reference to teacher training is twofold, guidance and preparation. In the preparation of teachers the College depends largely upon the subject matter departments of the other divisions of the University, articulating the work of these departments for the needs of prospective teachers and supplementing their efforts with appropriate courses of a professional nature. In performing the guidance function the College attempts to represent the interests of prospective teachers in all colleges of the University. While other divisions enroll students who expect to teach, the College of Education is vested with the responsibility for leadership in the University's teacher training program, a responsibility which involves the continuous study of problems of placement and of improved articulation between college preparation and work in the field.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

DEAN W. N. GLADSON

AN engineer, in utilizing the forces and materials of Nature and in directing men, may find his field of usefulness in serving society as a professional engineer, who may teach, engage in research or, as a professional, advise others. Such men should have mastered the physical sciences and mathematics, and be proficient in some branch of Engineering.

The man with aptitude for Engineering, but having a lesser knowledge of fundamentals, may find useful employment in production or installation of machinery, estimation or appraisal, sales work or operation.

The training one receives in an engineering college fits him for service in a number of different levels in the field of industry and, should he find himself in some other vocation, his college training will still be found to prepare him fairly well for any occupation.

Our Engineering College is well equipped to train men in the fundamentals. Our faculty is small in number but every man has been chosen because of his ability and high standing in his line, and our research laboratories, supplied with the best instruments and machines, afford excellent opportunity for study and research by graduate and undergraduate students, directed by competent instructors.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

THE College of Agriculture of the University of Arkansas is one of the new colleges of the University. The University, as originally organized, was not divided according to present designations. Courses in agriculture were offered almost from the opening—January 22, 1872—of the University, but the College of Agriculture was not established under its present name until 1905, twenty-seven years ago.

As educational matters are reckoned our College of Agriculture, is, therefore, only a baby. Many other states have similar colleges two to three times as old as ours. While our College is young—having had only twenty-seven years to find and develop young men and women for leadership in agriculture and home economics—yet the time has come when the training offered to the youngsters of Arkansas by the teaching staff of the College is beginning, in a marked way, to influence the life of Arkansas, as well as that of neighboring states, through the activities of our graduates. The business of the College of Agriculture does not consist wholly in finding and developing young people for leadership in Arkansas, but that job is one of its chief duties. That the job of developing leadership is being pursued with vigor is evidenced by the fact that the College now has approximately 150 of its graduates in positions of public leadership in Arkansas, to say nothing of other graduates who have gone to other states, and still others who are now a part of the business and agricultural life of the State.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

DEAN C. C. FICHTNER

THE School of Business Administration offers comprehensive programs of training for men and women planning business careers. In addition to instruction in the subject matter of accounting, banking, finance, law, management, marketing, statistics and so forth, the courses are designed to emphasize the economic principles underlying our complex civilization, to distinguish their bearing on the formulation of sound business policies, and to develop in the student a faculty of analysis and a skill in the solution of business problems. Because business is as broad as life itself, the business curricula include a wide range of liberal and professional courses offered in other divisions of the University.

The point of view is managerial. On the executives of business concerns throughout the world have devolved responsibilities for the welfare of peoples, the importance of which has been recognized by all too few social scientists. That these grave responsibilities have not been discharged successfully at all times is more obvious than the fact that the training and insight of passing generations of business leaders have not kept pace with the growing difficulties of control of an intricate capitalistic system rudely shaken by insanely nationalistic conflicts. The benefits of modern industrial organization are apparent, but no less apparent is the need for intelligent guidance. Interference by politically constituted authority is fraught with danger and ultimate loss. Regulation by economic and business experts offers more hope. While making no prediction of a millennium consequent to the rise of a generation of business administrators trained in university schools of business, it may reasonably be expected that under such influence many of the economic absurdities that plague all nations may gradually disappear.

All petitions pertaining to student affairs, advanced by the Student Senate were immediately approved by this board in favor of the students. Thus, contrary to precedent, student government is being recognized and appreciated by the faculty. Although it is still in its infancy, it should progress rapidly in the next few years.

The Association is a member of the Midwest Student Conference and of the National Student Federation of America, and it is represented annually at both conferences.

THE STAFF AT WORK

THE RAZORBACK OF 1932

The Razorback of 1932 is entirely different from the books of predecession—too much so, perhaps.

During the year 1932 the Hog Wallow, famous humor division of the book, was discontinued. The Board of Trustees, because of complaints throughout the state and from university students, suggested that the section be discontinued. The editor obeyed. With this section went the far-known and infamous Booze Who and H. A. Teams. Some feel that their loss has been truly a loss, others believe that the book has been gloriously moralized. The staff of the Razorback, although its opinion during the year has been definitely on one side of the controversy, makes no attempt to editorialize or to say whether the book has been injured or favored. Surely those who have taken side, regardless of their viewpoint, have been conscientious. Particularly the faculty members of the Board of Publications.

Regardless of the finished product, the editor, in all things, has religiously and foolishly, at times, endeavored to edit a Razorback according to his impression of the desires of the student body.

THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER

JACK BUSICK

The year 1932 marks the second year that the Arkansas Traveler, official weekly publication, has been edited under the supervision of the School of Journalism. As the Journalism department offered a major for the first time last year, the Traveler has been revised to serve as a true laboratory medium.

The publication is now an eight column paper with a reportorial staff of some twenty members who search and comb the campus daily for news and features. A well balanced editorial board and several wide-awake columnists gave Arkansas students a complete coverage of news on the campus.

Thirty issues were published during the year including the orientation, anniversary of the Traveler, souvenir, and the annual "razz" sheet which was published as a yellow tabloid. The Traveler staff made especial efforts to give all departments of the University equal representation.

The entire journalism school assisted in publishing the Traveler this year. Both an organized editorial and business staff functioned all year as the Traveler ended its 26th year on the Razorback campus.

The Arkansas Agriculturist is issued monthly by the students of the College of Agriculture. With the exception of some material written by Dean Dan T. Gray the publication is written solely by the student staff.

The Agriculturist is more than a college paper. It is issued for the benefit of the farmers of the state as well as the local students. This year the publication was placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Publications.

Top row: Gilliland, White, Barton, McGregor, Boyd, Cooper, Scott.
Second row: Kumpe, Walton, Setzler, Lloyd, Rogers, Morrow, Eoff, Thurman.

The Publications Board was founded, with good reason, several years ago by President Futrall. Some control of student publications was, at that time, entirely beneficial and, furthermore, it has continued so.

Five faculty members and four students comprise the board. The chairman votes only in case of a tie, thus giving nearly equal voice between the faculty and student representatives.

Under the jurisdiction of the board are The Razorback, The Arkansas Traveler, The Arkansas Agriculturist, and The Arkansas Engineer.

FEATURES

IN 1886, under the administration of Colonel George M. Edgar, the University was operated under the most rigid set of social rules during its history.

The sexes were segregated to the extreme. Boys were marched to and from classes in one line and the girls in another. They were divided in the class room and not allowed to talk or to write notes during the entire school day. When not in class all students were required to remain in study hall.

Miss Jobelle Holcombe, now associate professor of English, acted during 1896 as one of the student monitors who marched the groups from one class to another.

Some old-timers. Good old George at the pay counter. Treva and L'Louise at the game. Looking upside down from the grandstand. Second row: The Emancipation Banquet at Hill Hall—the freshmen are freed. The boys “get together” during the game. A scene in the new Kappa Sig House. Boyce’s buckle makes a halo but not on her head. Berry—gone but not forgotten. Arco and Thad look on.

Clifford and Rosalie—nufsed. Morley—nothing but a Wiseman. Second row: Some Tri-Delts are taken for a ride. Good ole Bow and Dick—arm in arm. "Cause it feels so good," says Jimmy. Bottom section: Captain Sherland and Tommy Thomsen wait for 1933. Nobles is caught in the act—and he made a 5 point in the law school. Picture of pictures—Queen of the Campus candidates. Some of the reprobates of the Traveler office. The Razorback photographer takes an Olive.

Homecoming—Top row: A bottle of something or other. The greased pig is released for the freshmen to capture. Second row: The Army waits for the traditional parade — many a rifle barrel swang awkwardly that day. The Queen's box at the game. Chi Omega wins the prize. A freshman with a pie—but not to eat. Bottom section: They didn't wear black sox. S. P. E. also wins for decorations. All out freshmen for the shirt-tail parade! A view of the grandstand—the scene was much nicer from a distance.

Winter—The editor raves and prays for snow—finally it comes. Allah! Allah! Another feature page. Top row: Jay Dickey thinks everything is 'oke.' Scene in a classroom. (The teacher never knew the picture was taken). Second row: Martha poses for a time exposure. Some one falls. The Band marches in. Bottom section: Looking from the third floor as classes are dismissed. The Key rests in snow. Looking through falling snow at Buck and Hill from the Razorback office. Soc Sadler may be seen struggling to his feet after having set Doccy Woccy Brewer in the snow. It was a frame-up on Doc.

Wiseman sleeps. Lady goes hunting. The girls play bridge before dates come over.. The silver stack. Swastika Sadie. St. Pat and Monique. Ira holds her for the picture. A view of the amphi-theatre.

Mr. McKeehan, accountant for the Razorback, at the top. Second row: The Press Box, where the news leaves the football field; Alex Diffey smiles; Jew and Hal and some of the boys talking it out in the Palace. Bottom row: Lowe, the librarian, apparently avoiding a trip to the shelves down stairs with the usual "it's out." Home of many Chi Omegas—the phone booth. Mr. Roberds and his many tubes and bottles are caught in the middle of an experiment.

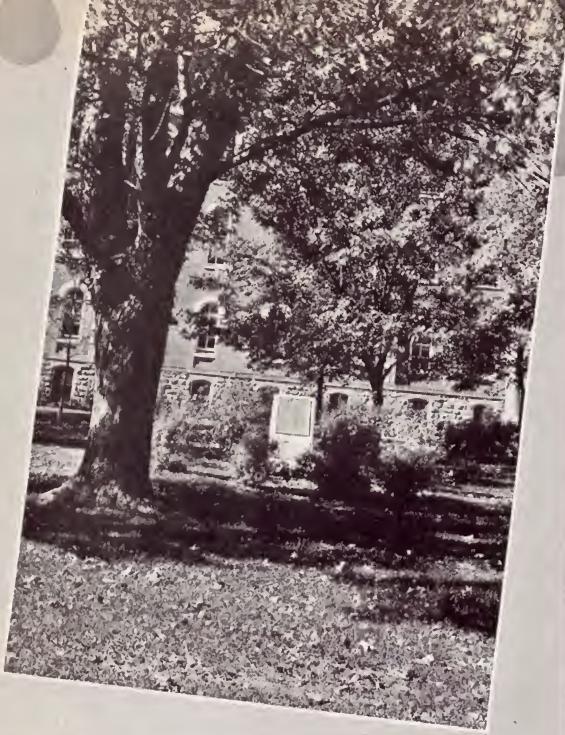

Annette and Bill. The Chi Omega attic. Some of the Sigma Nu lads rest awhile and watch the afternoon parade go by. Second row: The Engineers' dance. Roy, the news butch. Jeff of the Book Store. Third row: Chicken and Burnelle. Trent and his dusky jazz hounds wait for action at the Kappa Sig House. The sidewalk to Shuler town. Ogan pauses in her dancing to gaze with startled eye at the Graflex camera.

Spring—The campus trees bud again. Frances seems to find the season agreeable. Second row: Some of the gang pose on the bench outside Charley's store. Army and Vivien stand by. Deacon leaves the cares and toils of financing the Traveler for a little wink-and-nod. Sallye has her picture taken. Mother Maris of the Sigma Nus. Two Pi Phis and a couple of five-arm stars stroll on a spring afternoon, Peeeeetie and Midge. The mail-man.

The Main Hall at night. Don and U. M. think it's awful darn funny. Mount Sequoyah silhouetted by the moonlight. Second row: The Phi Phi taxi. Chivalrous Chotard and a couple of friends. "I like to see a man smoke a pipe." Frances and Marsh. Bottom row: Spring football—Chicken kicks one from beneath Biddle's fingers. Deacon breaks through again—this time wide-awake and smiling.

*Military—Sweetheart of the Regiment.
Colonel Browne. Second row: Passing of the colors—attention! Purifoy makes a face and does a good job of it. The Army. Bottom section: The Sergeant.

Top row: Don't do that "Bull!" Stein, of New York. Second row: Mrs. Leaming, the matron of Hill and Buck. An actual gunman, photographed by the editor while in Chicago last summer. Watson sleeps it off. Third row: If the actors attended Blackfriars plays as do audiences. View of track men necking in public. Bottom row: Downs and Mary Emma. The morning after the night before—the Sigma Nu dance. The finish - of a race and of this feature page—ho! hum!

Engineers' Day—Harmon and St. Pat's Queen. Sowell and Furry. Polly turns her back—at least it looks like Polly. The Engineer Building at night. The clover shines forth. The Engineers lay the smoke screen. Ralph Bennett and his Orchestra wait for the Alpha Lambda Tau dance to start. A trick of the Engineers don't believe what you see—it isn't so.

Bernice McGill. Second row: Juliette
Abington, Mabel Ruth McCaslin, Ethelyn
Howard. Third row: Frankie Weaver,

Secrest may be seen anxiously watching a vote for his man "Hoot." The gang outside "the scene of the crime" waits for any gullible voter who comes near. The Alpha Lambda Tau political dance and barbecue. Lower row: Reminder of fall politics; the entrants in the Beauty contest. Signs on the trees this year but not on the walks—see Wiseman for reasons why. Dapper Doug and Frangible Frank, guardsmen of the poll box.

BOOK - III

CLASSES

“PENNANT DAY,” originated March, 1903, and now called Junior-Senior Day, is one of the oldest traditions of the University. Rather mild, however, is the 1932 celebration in contrast to the early ones. In the early years of the custom the seniors, in addition to other ceremonies, placed their pennant on North Tower and requested the juniors to “leave it lay.”

Black eyes, shattered noses, and an occasional broken arm were always visible following the annual “knock-down drag-out.”

This tradition, unfortunately, was culminated when several class members fell or were thrown from the top of the tower. Much to the chagrin, perhaps, of their opponents they were caught and saved from serious injury by an open awning several floors below. Had they been killed our story would have been better and longer.

GRADUATES

The first intercollegiate debate of the University of Arkansas was in 1896, with the University of Missouri on the subject of free silver.

John Martineau, now a Supreme court justice, and George Vaughan, at present a professor in the University law school, were Arkansas' representatives. They lost.

SENIORS

In 1874 it was considered a serious offense for young gentlemen to associate with the ladies in attendance at the University. When requests were made to the faculty for socials and suspension of the rules they were usually refused. The men could not even accompany the young ladies home from the literary society meetings held on Friday night. However, one social a month was allowed for levity with the occasion favored by the attendance of a faculty member who stopped all dancing and other forms of horse-play.

SOPHOMORES

Around 1887 male students of the University were required by the Barker act of the State of Arkansas to work at least three hours a day, as part of his education, in the field or workshop.

This condition existed until 1889 when the faculty rendered the law impuissant by counting laboratory work as labor thus preventing the more strenuous physical exercises.

The Barker act was a result of the granger movement which was an attempt to utilitarianize higher education.

FRESHMIEN

Class fights are a long-lost art at Arkansas. But at one time, however, they were fervently performed. For a while the class flag was placed on a pole which stood in the proximity of the present R. O. T. C. flag pole. The contesting classes fought on the campus around the pole beneath the windows of University Hall where coeds peered from the upper floors at the slaughter below. "Pennant Day," as the occasion was termed, originated in March, 1903, as a holiday for juniors and seniors.

MILITARY

ALTHOUGH not always in a fashion agreeable to a military man, military tactics has been offered at the University since the year of its founding, 1872. Rather ludicrous were the equipment and appearance of the early "university armies."

At first there was no standard uniform and the typical squad, though exact, appeared, with garments ranging everywhere from red flannel shirts to blue, tattered overalls, more than anything else like a crazy quilt.

The year 1931-'32 has been an eventful one for the University unit of the R. O. T. C. For the third consecutive year, the corps has been given the rating of excellent which is the highest that can be attained.

Recently, the announcement was made that Major A. L. Hamblen will be transferred to Fort Leavenworth in August. Despite the concentrated efforts from both the students and University administration in an appeal to keep him here another year, he will be assigned to another post. His departure will be a distinct loss to the University as well as to the Military department.

The regimental sponsor, Julia Fletcher, was elected by popular vote of the entire regiment. She presided over the Military Ball and was present for all formal parades and reviews.

WHO'S WHO

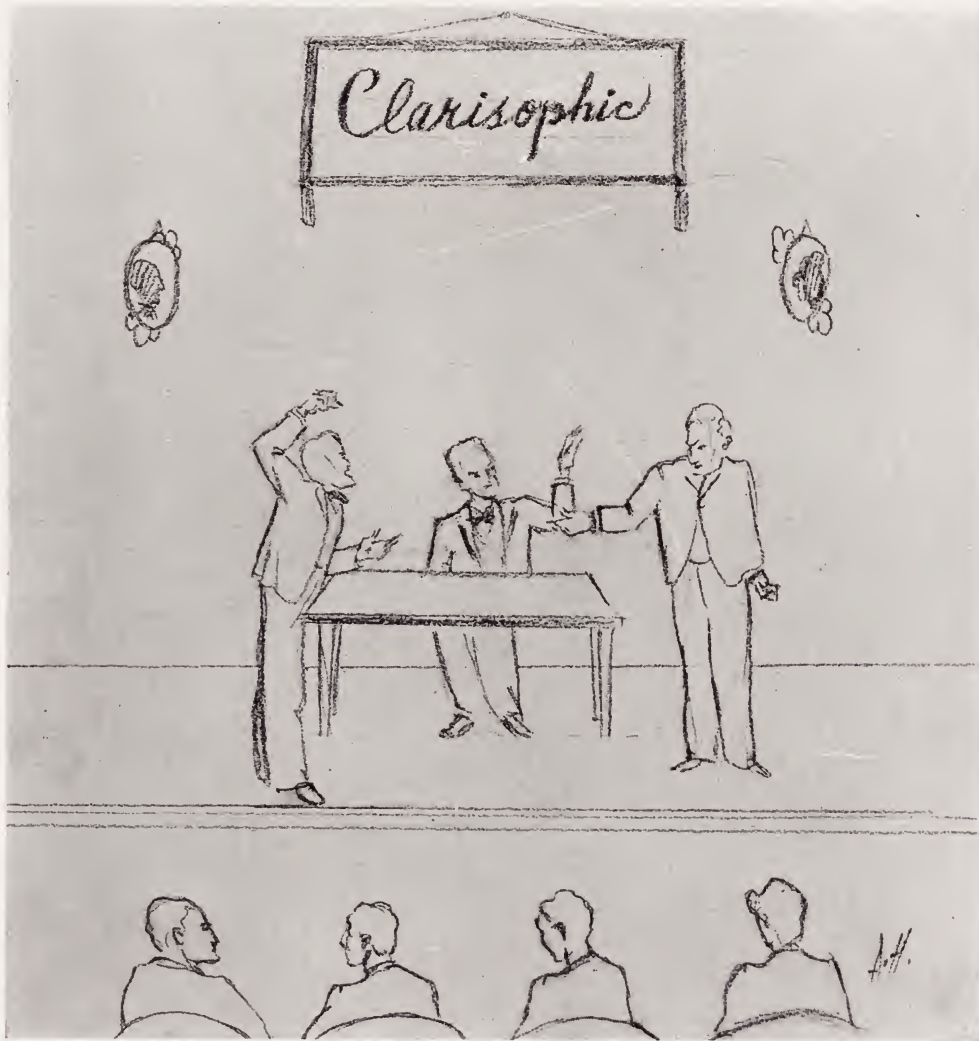

THE year 1874 was one of strain and turmoil both for the State of Arkansas and the University. The Brooks-Baxter War grew from the struggle between Democrats and Republicans for the office of governor. When Baxter defeated Brooks the entire Board of Trustees of the University was changed.

It was during the Brooks-Baxter War that a group of Brooks' partisans, by force, seized and transported to Little Rock the guns of the student military unit.

These guns were confiscated by these men from the University for active use against the opposing party.

WHO'S WHO

The "Clariosophic" society, founded in 1873, was the first organization formed at the University of Arkansas. It was literary in nature but, in part, served the function of the modern fraternity. Meetings were held on the fourth floor of the Main Building where Dr. Causey now pits frogs. Public speaking and debate were prominent in the programs of the organization. Internal dissension prostrated the club's existence in 1878.

The Spoofer's Stone—This stone, a tradition bordering on the sentimental element of the University's background, is as old as the University, itself. When University Hall was being constructed in 1872 this stone was accidentally dropped from a wagon carrying many of these stones up the hill to be used in construction. Where it fell it has remained, old and worn but still useful for its traditional purpose.

ATHLETICS

AROUND 1895, when the site of Carnall Hall was a blackberry patch, the University athletic teams fought their battles on that section of the campus directly east of north tower and north of where now stands the Senior Walk. The institution's first baseball team, called the University Whites, played many games on this field and the first football contests were held there also.

J. C. Futrall, now President of the University, at that time a professor of Latin, served as the first football coach.

A Texas newspaper, writing the day following Thanksgiving, 1894, of the first football game played by Arkansas away from home, said, "An alleged game of football was played here yesterday between the University of Texas and the University of Arkansas. Texas won, 51-0."

J. C. Futrall, Coach

FOOTBALL

For many years shirt-tail parades were held in celebration of athletic victories. Usually a large bonfire was built and the students gathered around it for the celebration. Cheers and songs were engaged in before the parade was formed and the whole of Fayetteville toured by the snake-like formation of yelling, whooping students.

COACHING STAFF

THOMSEN

Head Coach Fred C. Thomsen is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he was a letter man in three sports—football, track, and baseball. He first came to the University of Arkansas in the fall of 1927 as assistant to F. A. Schmidt, and when the latter resigned as coach here in 1929 to become Athletic Director at Texas Christian University, Thomsen succeeded him. Thomsen's record since becoming the big shot in the coaching department has been mediocre. In 1929 his football team won seven games and lost but two, playing the strongest teams in the Southwest. In 1930 the Razorbacks won three games while losing six, but finished third in the Southwest Conference. In 1931 the team won three, tied one, and lost five, and was the only eleven in the Southwest Conference which failed to win a game in Conference competition. Thomsen is head coach of the track team, and he has had about as much success with that as he has had in football. Thomsen has always worked under the handicap of lack of material, and has yet to experience a season in which his teams were not sorely crippled by injuries.

Charles F. Bassett, Thomsen's chief assistant, and head coach of basketball, is a graduate of Michigan State. He came to Arkansas in 1929 from Texas A. and M. Bassett is the football line coach, basketball coach, and director of intramurals at the University. His work with the gridiron squad has been highly satisfactory, and during three years the basketball teams he has developed have been excellent.

In 1930 he won the Conference championship; in 1931 and 1932 the team wound up the season in third position. His most constructive work, however, has been in the intramural field, and now this branch of athletics is considered of as great importance at Arkansas as is intercollegiate competition.

Glen "Bull" Rose, head Freshman coach, is a graduate of the University of Arkansas. He has been Frosh coach here since 1929; two of his football teams went through entire seasons undefeated; his basketball team of 1930 won every game, and his 1932 aggregation suffered only one defeat. Rose is also coach of tennis, and his net teams have been the best that Arkansas has ever produced. His 1931 team was undefeated throughout the season.

Rose's chief assistant is Wear "Jake" Schoonover, also an Arkansas graduate, and in 1929 All-American end. Schoonover was a four-letter man while in school, playing end on the football team, forward in basketball, broad jumped in track, and played the initial bag on the baseball team of 1929, the last year that the diamond sport survived at the University.

With only a limited number of reserves, and playing too hard a schedule for the size of the squad, the Razorbacks had another unsatisfactory season in 1931, winning but one major contest. The team had a good line, but the backfield was weak, both offensively and defensively. Murphy, playing his first year on the team, was easily the best of the backs, and he and Ledbetter bore the brunt of most of the offense. Phillips, the best passer in the conference, was out most of the season with a wrenched knee. Biddle, the best defensive back on the squad, was no threat on the offense. Holmes played inconsistently - a marvelous performance one week would be followed by a putrid demonstration the next. Karr was just another man in uniform.

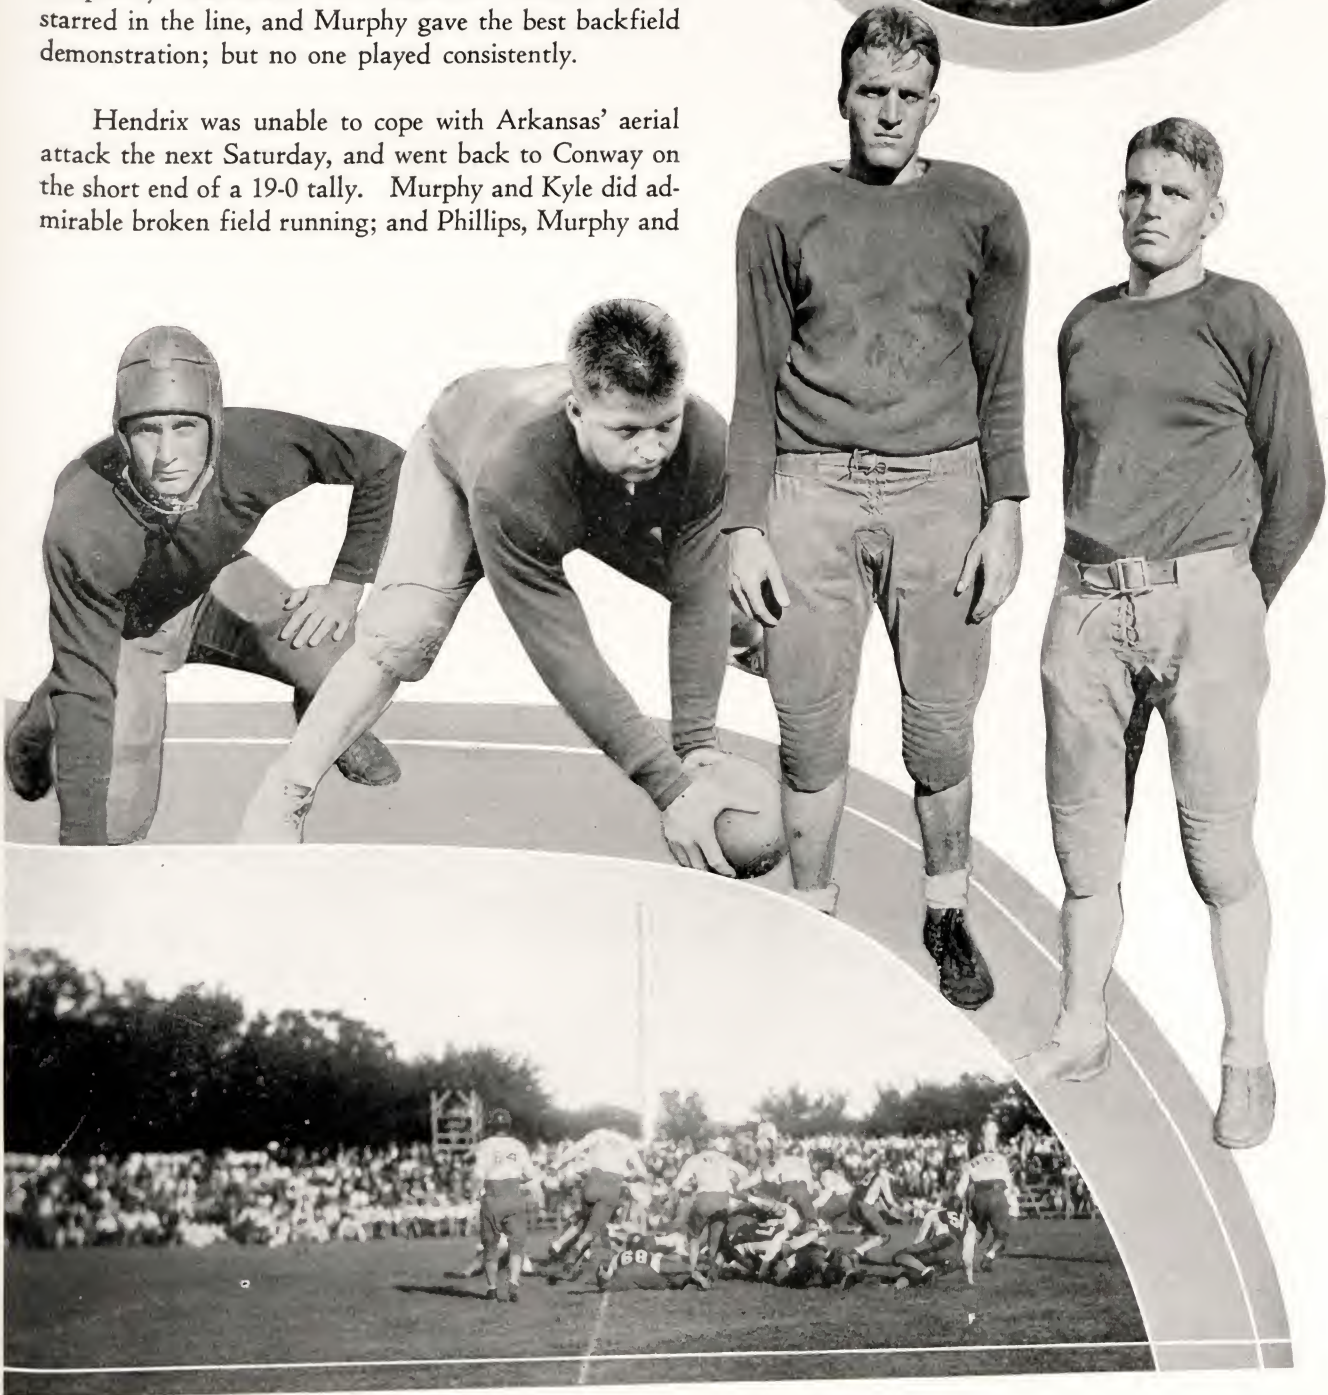

Erwin, captain-elect for next year, was far and away the best linesman. Secrest and Darr, playing their final year on the Varsity, did yeoman service, and Edmondson was a consistent performer. Johnson and Nations were as good defensive ends as the Conference produced, but Johnson was handicapped during the latter part of the season by various injuries. Neeley proved a capable substitute for Johnson while the latter was handicapped. Kelley started the season as regular center, but lack of weight forced him to give way to Jack Robison, and Robison proved himself to be one of the best snapperbacks who ever trod a cleat on Razorback field.

The team opened the season, as usual, with the College of the Ozarks at Fayetteville on the 26th of September. A stubbornly contested game resulted in a meager 13-6 victory for the home club. The locals were outkicked and outfought, and only won because of a fake triple pass, Ledbetter to Holmes to Johnson, that completely befuddled the Clarksville eleven. Erwin starred in the line, and Murphy gave the best backfield demonstration; but no one played consistently.

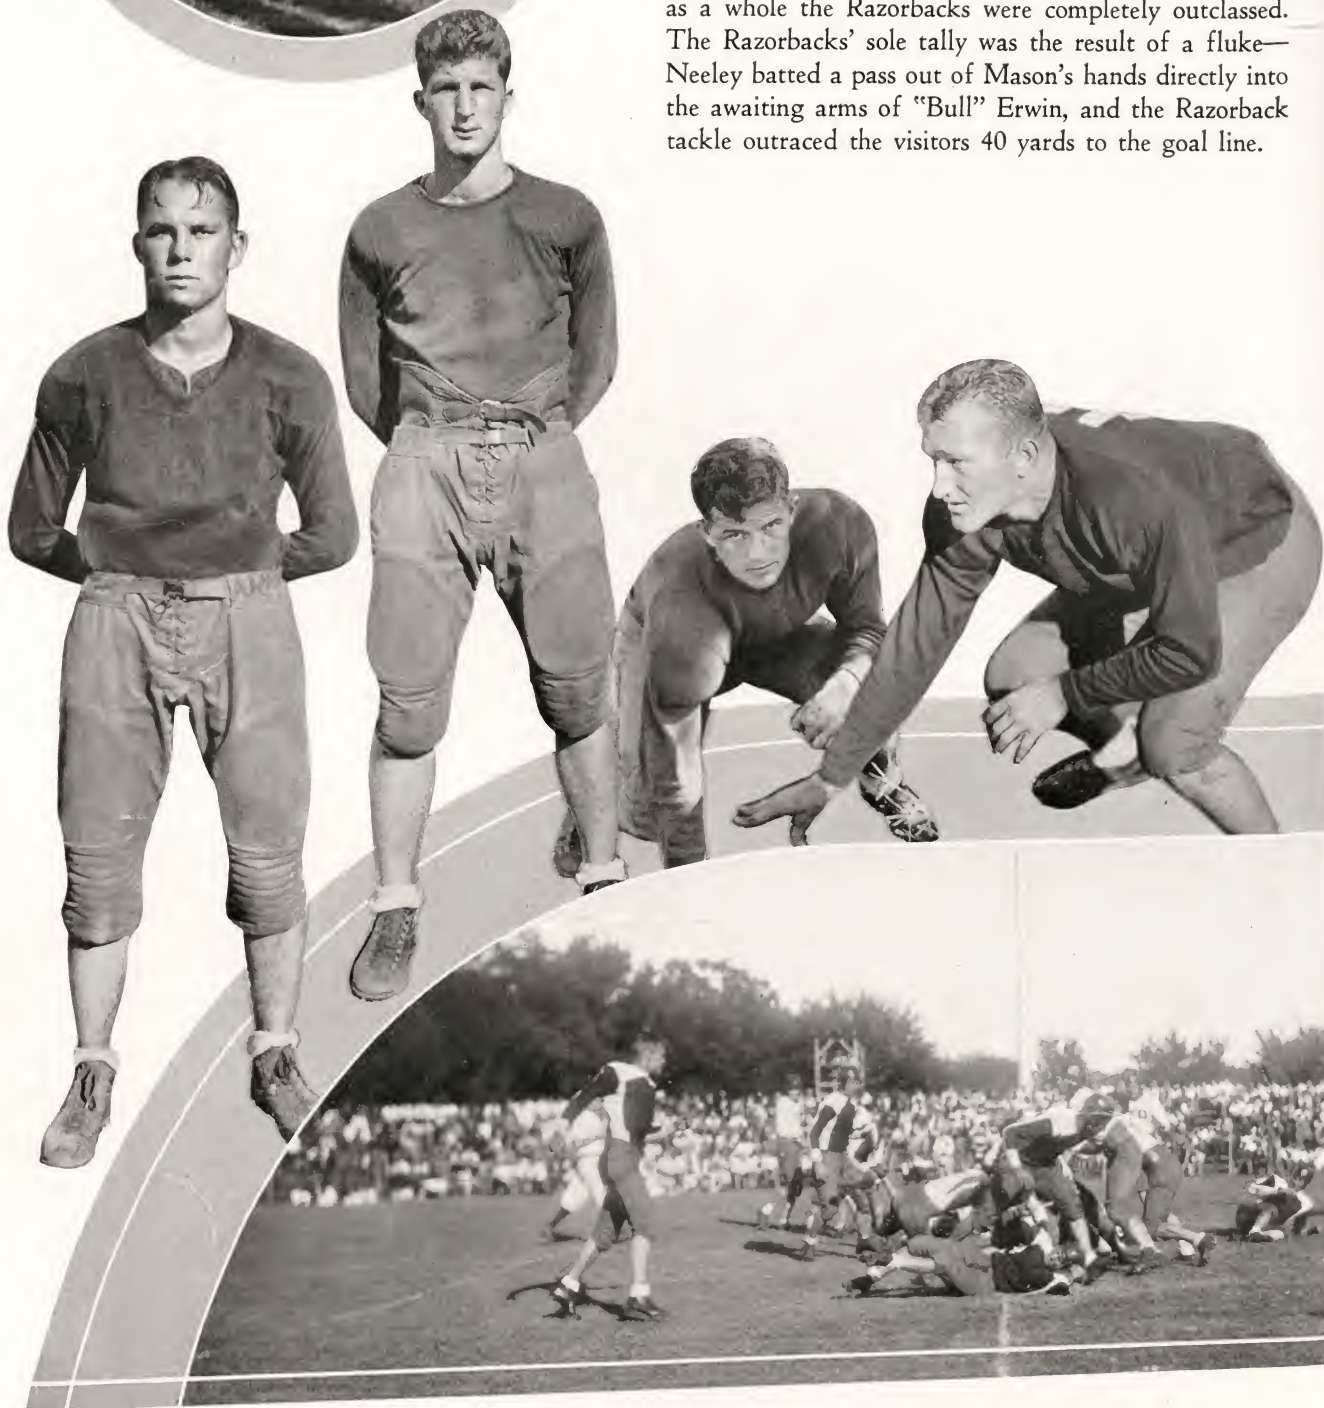

Hendrix was unable to cope with Arkansas' aerial attack the next Saturday, and went back to Conway on the short end of a 19-0 tally. Murphy and Kyle did admirable broken field running; and Phillips, Murphy and Holmes shot pass after pass directly into the arms of potential receivers, but a good many of their accurate heaves were muffed. Fumbles also cut down the Arkansas score, and numerous penalties were assessed against the team at critical moments. The Bulldogs showed nothing to write home about.

The Razorbacks took their worst plastering of the year at Fayetteville on October 10th at the hands of a great S. M. U. team, 6-42. It was an awful game to watch. The Methodists gained at will either through the line, around ends, or in the air. Nations and Biddle succeeded in stopping quite a few S. M. U. plays, and Darr was the outstanding performer on either team, but as a whole the Razorbacks were completely outclassed. The Razorbacks' sole tally was the result of a fluke—Neeley batted a pass out of Mason's hands directly into the awaiting arms of "Bull" Erwin, and the Razorback tackle outraced the visitors 40 yards to the goal line.

Baylor was the next beneficiary of Arkansas impotence, the Baptists annexing a contest on October 17th, 19-6. Arkansas was leading, 7-6, at the half, by virtue of a touchdown by Ledbetter and a conversion by Captain Secrest, but a 15-yard penalty assessed against Ledbetter in the last few minutes of play gave Baylor the ball on Arkansas' two-yard line, and a touchdown resulted. Arkansas' frantic passing attack after the ensuing kickoff led to an interception and another marker.

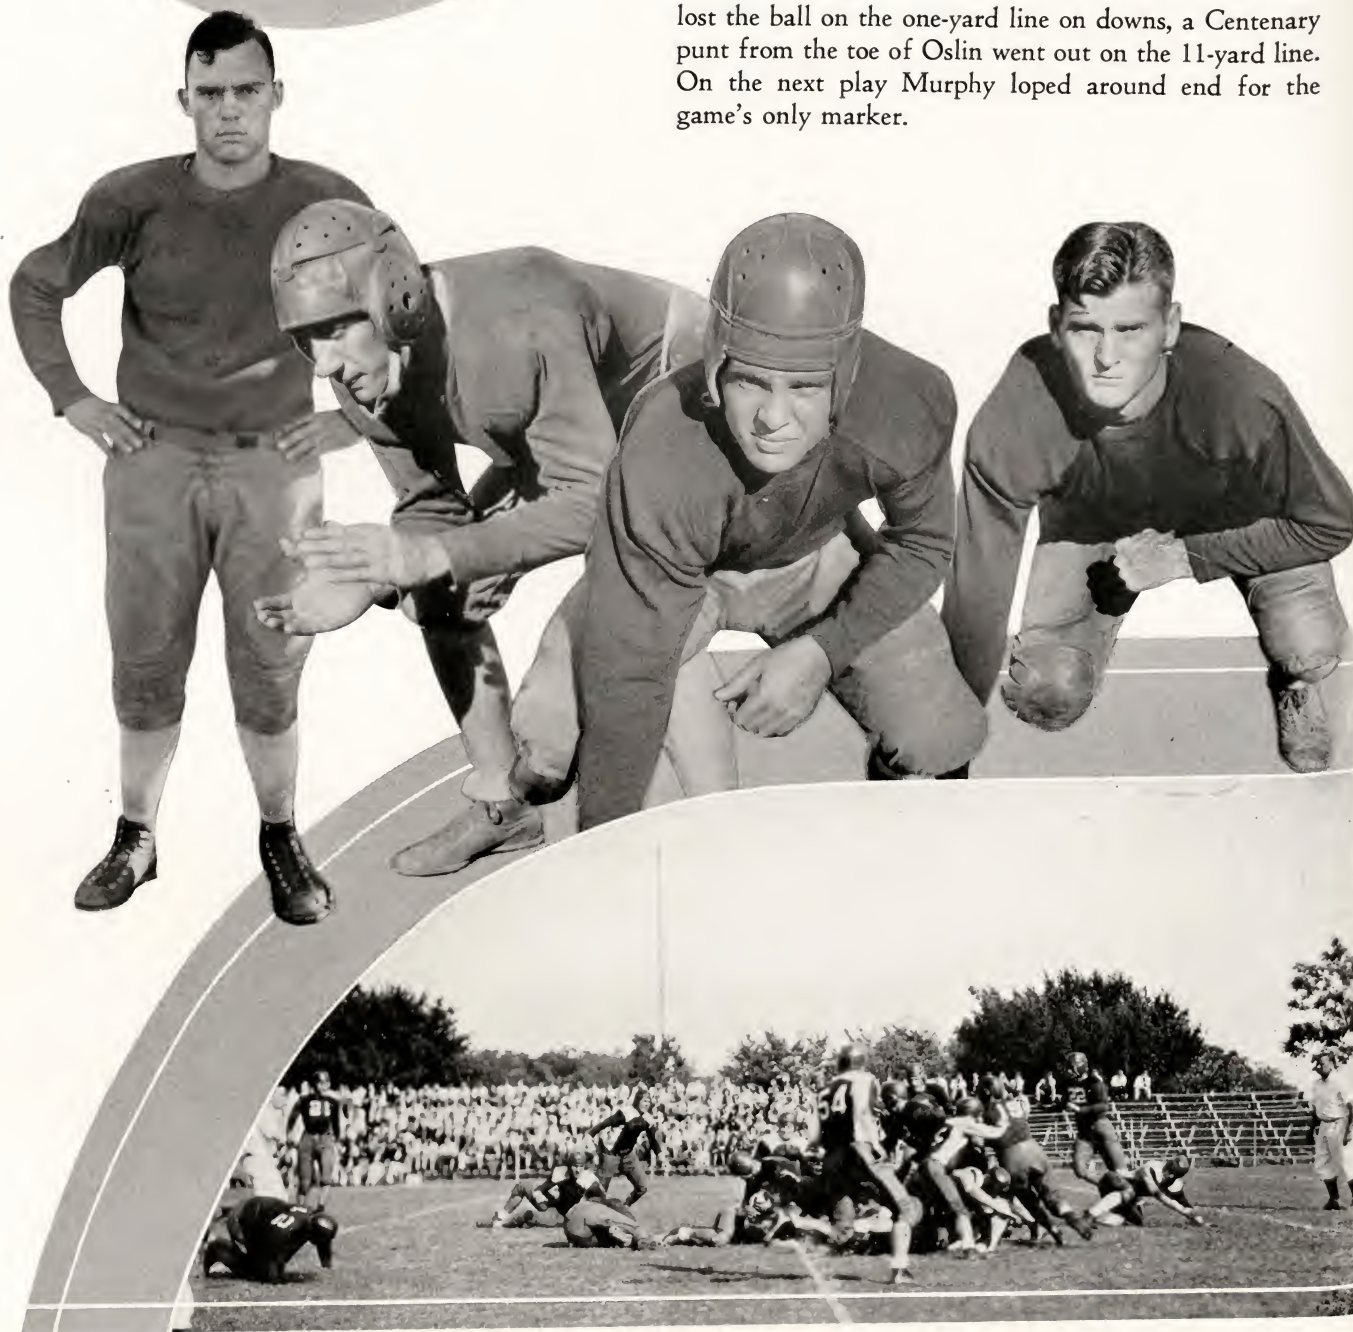

L. S. U. got all the breaks, and a 13-6 decision, at Shreveport the next week. The Razorbacks outgained, outfought, and outkicked the Cajuns, but were outsmarted by Huey P. Long's proteges, who scored twice on long runs from quick-opening plays that caught the Razorbacks completely unaware. Murphy was the Shoats' entire offensive, although Ledbetter made the touchdown. Smith won the game for the Louisianans in the third quarter when he broke through the line and charged 75 yards to score.

Arkansas put up a good fight against a powerful T. C. U. team on October 31, but was finally nosed out, 7-0. Chicago was the scene of a 13-13 tie with the Chicago U. Maroons the next week, two touchdowns by Ledbetter and a goal by Secrest in the last quarter enabling the Pigs to come from behind to knot the count. A poor kick by Murphy resulted in the second Maroon touchdown, or the Razorbacks would have won. Rice won a stubbornly contested game, 26-12, on November 21, the Arkansans showing a good offense and incapable defense.

The final game of the season was played at Shreveport on Thanksgiving against Centenary in a sea of mud, and, thanks to a touchdown in the last quarter by Murphy, Arkansas won, 6-0. After the Razorbacks had lost the ball on the one-yard line on downs, a Centenary punt from the toe of Oslin went out on the 11-yard line. On the next play Murphy loped around end for the game's only marker.

BASKETBALL

Once Civil War bullets, striking trees and ricocheing from stones, shot over the ground now occupied by the University.

Fayetteville, itself, was a hot-bed of strife. On April 17, 1863, the Confederates with two cannons held forth, east of town, against the Federals who held headquarters at the Courthouse.

To make the facts agreeable—the southerners were repulsed by heavier Federal forces only after a terrific struggle and the destruction of the courthouse by the Confederate cannon. (Confederate taxes built the courthouse).

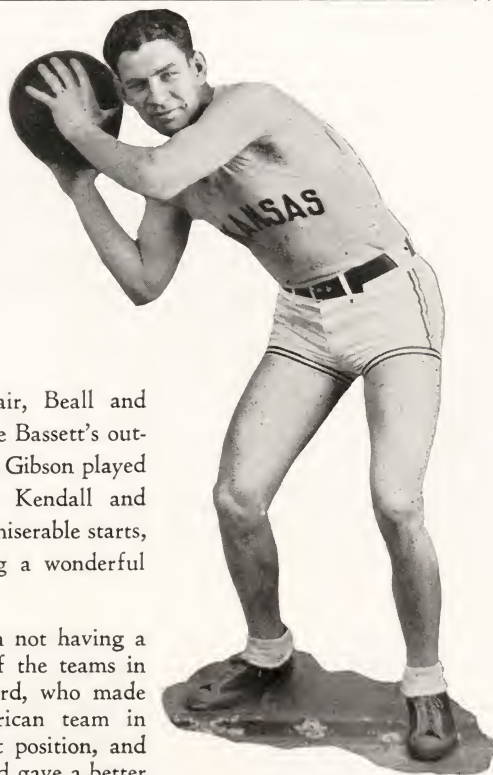

THE SQUAD

COACH BASSETT

Coach "Chuck" Bassett had a veteran squad to mould his 1932 quintet from. Five letter-men, Gibson, Sexton, Murphy, Jelks, and Kendall reported to him, in addition to Clifton and Innis, reserve letter-men of the preceeding season, and from Rose's 1931 Frosh squad Bassett inherited Brasfield, Blair, Beall and Lake. Sexton and Murphy were Bassett's outstanding luminaries, but Captain Gibson played consistent ball all season, and Kendall and Brasfield, after getting away to miserable starts, wound up the season displaying a wonderful brand of basketball.

The team was handicapped in not having a center as tall as the majority of the teams in the Conference. Sexton, a guard, who made that position on the All-American team in 1931, was shoved into the pivot position, and while he played sensationally, and gave a better show of himself in the T. C. U. series than Dietzel, Schmidt's much lauded tipoff man, the fact that he was forced to consistently jump against men several inches taller than him tended to wear him down during the grind of the entire season. Murphy, given a place on the All-Conference second team in 1931, was placed on the first team as guard in 1932, as was Sexton. Gibson made the second team.

RESUME OF THE SEASON

The Razorbacks started off the season by romping over the Northeast Oklahoma Teachers from Tahlequah in two practice games, 46-28 and 43-31. Sexton was high point man in each contest, and Murphy displayed the form that later won him All-Conference recognition. Coach Bassett substituted freely in both contests, in order to get a line on his new reserve material.

Tulsa University offered more opposition when they came to Fayetteville for a two game series a few days later, and the Pigs were forced to extend themselves to win both contests, 32-28, and 37-29. Ishmael Pilkington was the big shot of the Golden Hurricane, both on defense and offense. Sexton was high point man the first night, and Kendall carried off scoring honors on the second.

A field goal by Sexton and a charity basket by Captain "Preacher" Gibson in the last minute of play enabled the Razorbacks to nose out the Springfield, Mo., Teachers, 41-38, on the latter's court, December 19. Despite the high score, the game was slow and listless, characterized by much rough playing and numerous personal fouls. The next night the Boars lost their first contest of the year at Pittsburg, Kansas, to the Pittsburg Teachers' College, 26-36. The losers were completely outclassed in all departments of play.

Arkansas started the new year correctly by smothering Drury College on January 1, 45-26. Sexton, with eight field goals and five free throws, was easily high point man. Most of the home club's 26 points were tallied from the 15-foot line, as it was unable to break through the Arkansas defense with any consistency. Arkansas then went to St. Louis to drop a game to the Jesuits, 23-25, the next night, with both teams playing poor ball.

On January 8, the Razorbacks lifted the lid off the 1932 Southwest Conference title race by barely defeating Texas University 24-21. Our boys met with considerable more opposition than they had anticipated, but instead of profiting by the experience, allowed the Steers to beat them the next night, 25-27. Arkansas had a six-point lead at the end of the half, but Sexton fouled out early in the second canto, and there was no one left to take the ball off the backboard. Gibson and Murphy played best for Arkansas, although Sexton was high point man.

While waiting for S. M. U. to come up from Waco, Arkansas hung a couple of more scalps on its belt by trouncing Drury, 35-14, and then gaining revenge on Pittsburg for the debacle in Kansas by unexpectedly defeating the visitors, 32-14. Arkansas' performance in this game was the best it displayed all season. Sexton was high point man, and the principal defensive star.

S. M. U. provided but little opposition to the Swine, dropping both games, 20-46 and 20-29, but Baylor, who eventually won the title, beat our boys in the first game, 34-28. With Murphy and Kendall in great form the following night, Arkansas won, 42-31.

GIBSON

The Razorbacks were hosts to St. Louis U. on February 16, and beat the boys from up north, 33-19. St. Louis had a small but clever team, and the game was one of the fastest of the year, and the most closely contended, despite the discrepancy in score. The Springfield Teachers displayed little while dropping a game here, 19-37, on Washington's birthday.

The final four games of the season were played in Texas, and after dropping the first of the quartet, 23-28, to Texas A. and M., Arkansas wound up the season with three consecutive victories. After dropping the game at College Station, the Razorbacks visited Rice and won two contests, 25-23 and 34-19. Brasfield was the hero of the first contest, his six points in the last two minutes snatching the game from the loss column. The Owls were easy on the second night, trailing by 15 points when the final gun sounded.

Arkansas then revenged itself on the Aggies in the final game of the year on March 2, by scoring a 33-27 victory in a game that was in doubt as to the result until the last two minutes of play. Sexton and Brasfield led the scorers, and Murphy's defensive play was preeminent.

TRACK

RESUME OF THE SEASON

Around a handful of veterans, Coach Fred Thomsen developed a well balanced track team.

Leslie Nations, Porker distance star, was captain of the team and through the season proved himself a worthy leader and a consistent point maker.

As this book goes to press the Razorbacks have won a triangle meet from Hendrix and the College of the Ozarks, and a dual meet from Tulsa University; their only loss so far has been to Springfield (Missouri) Teachers.

The team has one more dual meet during the 1932 season, this with Oklahoma A. and M. The week following the Oklahoma meet the season will be concluded with entry in the Southwest Conference Meet.

Ivan Jackson returned to varsity competition after a year's absence and proved a winner in the 880, mile, pole vault, and broad jump.

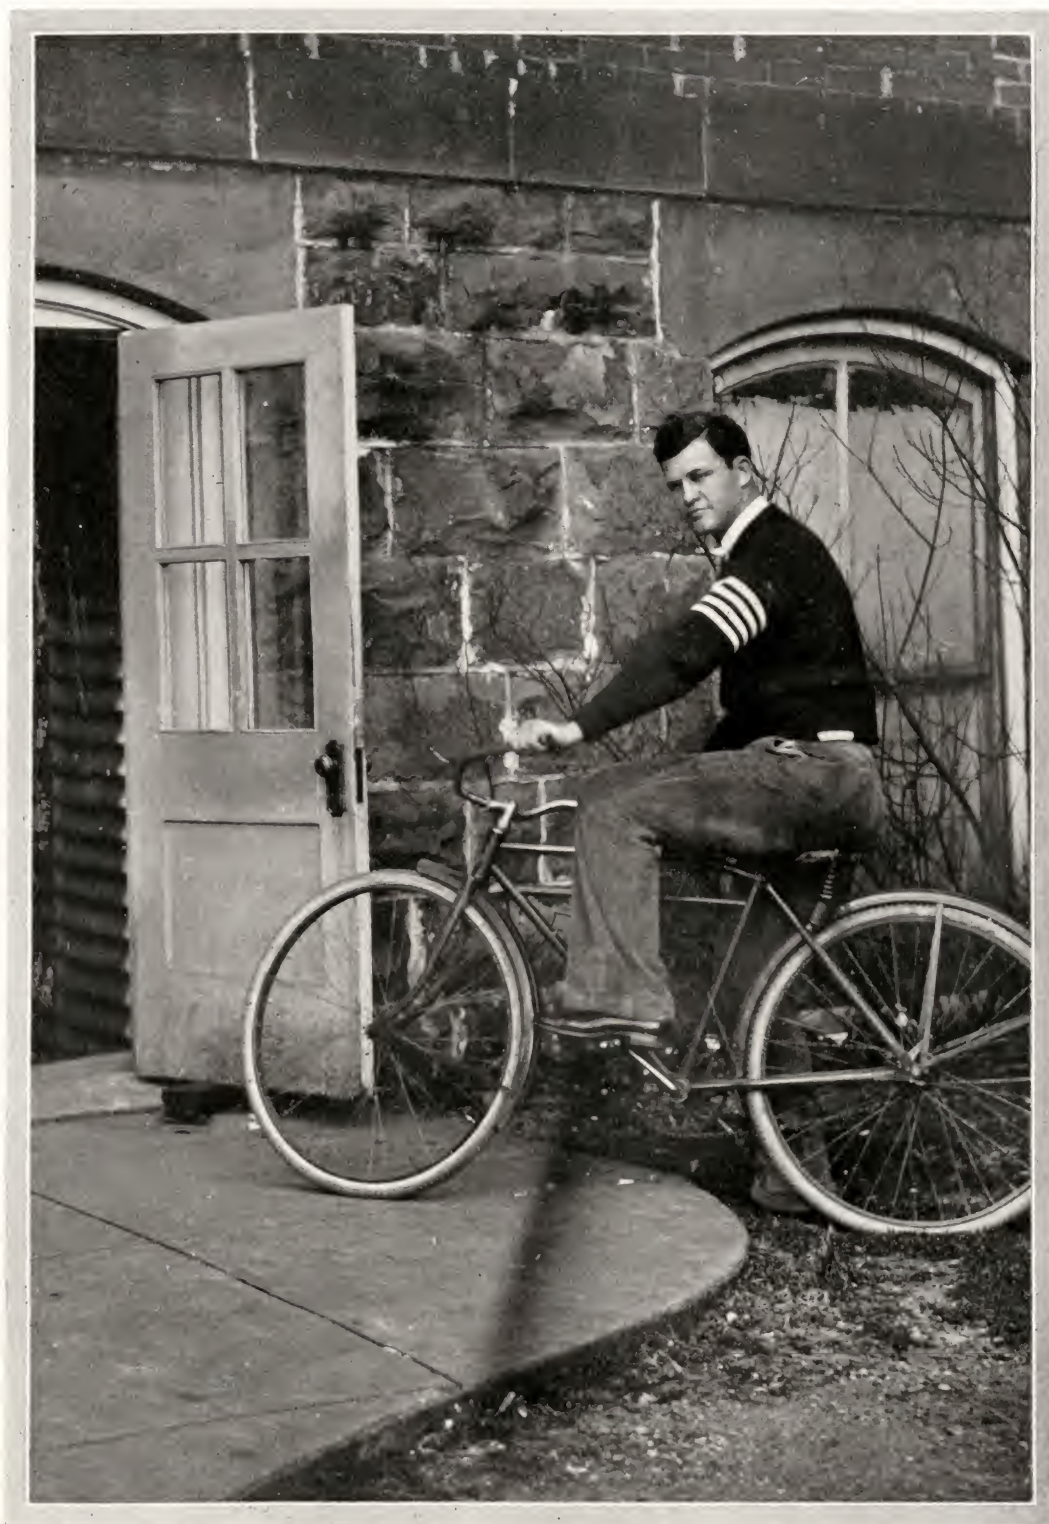

During the season Murphy and McLeod have run the dashes, Coleman and Lake, the hurdles, Austin and Phillips, the quarter mile, and Jackson, Gower, and Nations, the distance events. The relay team, Phillips, Lake, McLeod, and Austin have been particularly successful during the season.

Erwin, Sanders, and Phillips have been the main-stays in the field events and Dees, Jackson, Coleman, and Sexton have been the quartet of jumpers of which Coleman has been the best.

With only one man being lost by graduation and a new crop of freshmen, LaForge, Rizio, and Sherland, to come forth in 1933 prospects look bright.

MINOR SPORTS

During the World War period, around 1918, the University was virtually consumed by preparatory activities. The campus was placed under military control and barracks were erected for the hundreds of recruits located in Fayetteville. Guards stood in military post at every entrance to the campus and all who entered were required to stand recognitive inspection. One day President Futrall was refused admittance by one of the guards, presumably because he forgot the password.

TENNIS

ROSE

Handicapped by the loss of all the 1931 lettermen, the tennis team won two of four matches, losing to Northeastern Teachers of Tahlequah twice and winning from Drury and Tulsa University.

The first match went to Northeastern Teachers 5-1, Terry winning the only match for Arkansas. Drury was defeated 4-2, and Tulsa 5-1. In the final match with the Northeastern Teachers, Rogers won Arkansas' only match, the score was 5-1.

Glen Rose, coach, has worked diligently with the new material and the 1933 season, with such men as Lovett and Cabell, as well as other members of the squad, should prove very successful.

ORGANIZATIONS

IN 1880, with the approval of the faculty, an Anti-copying Society was formed by the student body. The organization was secret, members being known only among themselves and by the faculty. Court was held in which students were tried for offenses against honesty. Punishment was meted to those declared guilty.

FRATERNITIES

In 1901 fraternities were outlawed at the University of Arkansas by the state legislature. Secret meetings were held during the several years existence of the ban by the various fraternal organizations and, consequently, when they were again reinstated in 1903 the strength of the groups which had continued their meetings sub-rosa was little affected by the dormant period.

KAPPA SIGMA

Founded at the University of Virginia, 1869.

Xi Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1890.

Kappa Sigma was founded at the University of Virginia, December 10, 1869, by William G. McCormick, George M. Arnold, Edmund Law Rogers, Jr., Frank C. Nicodemus and John C. Boyd.

From its inception it was intended that Kappa Sigma should expand into other institutions and become a widespread organization, but it was not until 1873 that the founders saw their plans take definite shape, although a chapter had been established at the University of Alabama shortly after the parent chapter was organized.

Arkansas Xi Chapter was established in 1890. The chapter existed as the Richardson Club, named after Dr. Charles Richardson of Fayetteville, during the time the fraternities were barred from the Arkansas campus, between the years 1901 and 1903.

The regular conventions, called grand conclaves, are held every two years—since 1915 in the odd-numbered years,—usually in mid summer. Publications are "The Caduceus," monthly magazine, and the "Star and Crescent."

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Founded at the University of Alabama, 1856.

Alpha Epsilon Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1893.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded in 1856 by eight students of the University of Alabama, who had become hard and fast friends. In its early days it remained in the South, the first chapter north of the Mason and Dixon line being established just before the Civil War. At present the orders number one hundred and three active chapters with an initiated membership of over 36,000. Working in collaboration with the active chapters are one hundred and five alumni associations in American cities and in Paris, France. Of these, there are three in this state. Publications are fraternity histories, directories, secret publications, and the periodical magazine, "The Record," which is a quarterly with a circulation of 30,000.

National headquarters are maintained at Evanston, Illinois. In the National house, owned by S. A. E., there is a large library of books concerning fraternity subjects in general and a museum devoted to the American college fraternity. Conventions are held biennially, and in alternate years province conventions meet. The local chapter, Arkansas Alpha Epsilon, was established on the University campus in 1894 with a chapter enrollment of 17.

KAPPA ALPHA

Founded at Washington and Lee University, 1865.

Alpha Omicron Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1895.

Kappa Alpha Order was founded December 21, 1865, at Washington and Lee University. The bleeding South was just emerging from the Civil War, and four students of what was then Washington College banded together to start a movement to foster and maintain the manners, customs, and ideals of the Southern people. They looked to Robert E. Lee, who was at that time president of Washington College, as their ideal.

Kappa Alpha has confined itself to the South. The order now has 67 chapters located in the principal colleges and universities of the South. Alpha Omicron was installed April 27, 1895. Before binding itself to the national fraternity, it was a local fraternity of ten men.

The Kappa Alpha Order is organized in seven provinces and these are officiated by Province Commanders, Secretaries, and Alumni Historians. Over these provinces are a Knight Commander, a Grand Purser, a Grand Historian, and a Chief Alumnus. Professor Allan S. Humphreys, a member of the local chapter, is now serving as Grand Purser. Official publications are the Kappa Alpha Journal, The Special Messenger, Directory, and Kappa Alpha song book.

SIGMA NU

Founded at Virginia Military Institute, 1869.

Gamma Upsilon Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1904.

Sigma Nu originated from the Legion of Honor, a secret organization. When the Greek letter name was adopted on January 1, 1869, at the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va. James F. Hopkins of Arkansas was the recognized leader of the Legion of Honor, which opposed the overbearing control of another secret society. Hopkins, designer of the badge of Sigma Nu, was associated with Greenville Quarles and James M. Riley in the formation of the fraternity.

The chapters were not given Greek letter names at first, but were designated by Roman numerals in order of their establishment. There are now ninety-eight active chapters with a total membership of about 29,781.

Official publications include The Delta, quarterly periodical, the Sigma Nu Song Book, The Story of Sigma Nu, and Sigma Nu catalogues.

The Gamma Upsilon chapter was established at the University of Arkansas in 1904.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Founded at the University of Virginia, 1868.

Alpha Zeta Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1904.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded at the University of Virginia, March 1, 1868, by Frederick Southgate Taylor, Littleton Waller Tazewell, Julian Edward Wood, Robertson Norward, James Benjamin Sclater, and William Alexander. At first the fraternity was sectional, being confined to the South, but conservative expansion has resulted in an organization which is located in the larger institutions throughout the country.

At present the fraternity numbers seventy-nine active chapters, and has numerous active alumni chapters scattered throughout the United States.

Alpha Zeta chapter of the University of Arkansas was chartered November 2, 1904, there being ten charter members. It was established early in the year 1905, and was the first chapter west of the Mississippi.

The Shield and Diamond, the official publication, is issued five times a year, containing news from all the chapters and topics of fraternity interest. The secret publication of the fraternity is the Dagger and Key.

SIGMA CHI

Founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, 1855.

Omega Omega Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1905.

Sigma Chi was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, on June 28, 1855, by Thomas C. Bell, James P. Caldwell, F. H. Scobey, Daniel William Cooper, Isaac M. Jordan, Benjamin Piatt Runkle, and William L. Lockwood, who, with the exception of the last, had been members of Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon. It was the nineteenth college fraternity founded and the third to be founded at Miami University, the other two being Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta, which, with Sigma Chi, form the Miami Triad. The fraternity was first announced as Sigma Phi, but in 1856 the name was changed to Sigma Chi, due to the fact that the ritual and records of the chapter were stolen and that there existed at that time an eastern fraternity known as Sigma Phi.

The fraternity was carried on during the Civil War by a very unique group, the Constantine Chapter, which was composed of seven Sigma Chis who were in the Confederate Army. Its purpose was to perpetuate the fraternity in the South, regardless of the outcome of the war. Two initiations were held and the chapter remained active until the close of the war. Sigma Chi was the first Greek-letter fraternity to adopt a private publication, which was established in 1877.

Sigma Chi consists of 91 chapters that are active, and twenty that are inactive. Two of the chapters are in Canada. The official publication is the Magazine of Sigma Chi.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Founded at the University of Richmond, 1901.

Arkansas Alpha Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1907.

Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded at Richmond College (now the University of Richmond), Richmond, Virginia, in November, 1901. The basis of the organization was a society called the Saturday Night Club.

One of the features of the fraternity is the financial plan. Concerning this, Baird's Manual says: "In 1916 the Purdue chapter surrendered all its property to the alumni who devised a plan of operation, since copyrighted by the fraternity as the Purdue Plan and now known as the 'Sigma Phi Epsilon Plan of Finance.' Under this plan financial affairs of the chapter are entirely in the hands of the alumni, the inexperienced undergraduate being relieved of this burden and so left free to devote all time to fraternal matters. The plan which worked so successfully at Purdue has been installed in all the chapters."

Arkansas Alpha chapter was installed at the University of Arkansas in 1907. The publication of the order is the Sigma Phi Epsilon Journal, published monthly.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Founded at Boston University, 1909.

Gamma Chi Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1925.

Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity was founded at Boston University, growing out of the Cosmopolitan Law Club, which had been organized in 1905. The Club was the parent of the first Zeta of the fraternity, Alpha, which was naturally at Boston.

The fraternity has now a total of eighty-one chapters, all of which are active.

The headquarters of Lambda Chi Alpha are at Indianapolis, Indiana, under the managership of Bruce H. McIntoch, administrative secretary. It has two full-time salaried secretaries who make chapter visitations twice a year.

The two major ideals of the fraternity are "Service" and "Fraternalism."

Theta Phi Delta was founded at the University of Arkansas November 1, 1923, by Garland Stubblefield and Phil Deal. It was chartered as a Zeta in the national fraternity May 24, 1925. The publications of the fraternity are "The Purple, Green, and Gold" and the "Cross and Crescent."

THETA KAPPA NU

Founded by the Interfraternity Amalgamation, 1924.

Arkansas Alpha Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1926.

Theta Kappa Nu was never founded; it was amalgamated. If founding dates back to the first chapter of a fraternity, Theta Kappa Nu was born in 1867 at Culver-Stockton College in Missouri. But in this consolidation decade Theta Kappa Nu represents the merger plan applied to the fraternal world. At a meeting in Springfield, Missouri, in 1924, eight old established locals and a small national fraternity of three chapters assumed the same obligations. Theta Kappa Nu then is unique in having no mother chapters.

There are 55 chapters of Theta Kappa Nu. Arkansas Alpha, in accordance with national rules, owns its home. Activities and scholarship have been the stressed features of the local group.

Plans for the future of Arkansas Alpha of Theta Kappa Nu are for intensive improvements in the form restricted pledging of new men; extensive improvement in favorable publicity as pertains to scholarship, morality, and good will.

ALPHA LAMBDA TAU

Founded at Oglethorpe University, 1916
Mu Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1928.

Alpha Lambda Tau was founded at Oglethorpe University October 8, 1916, the first fraternal organization on the campus. The prime motive of the founders was the desire to have a new fraternity grow with a new university. For ten years there was an unconfirmed opinion among the members that the fraternity was to be forever confined to the South. Several years ago, however, this subject was discussed in convention and repudiated. Since then the lone northern chapter has been established at the University of Illinois. The fraternity was founded to be a national organization, and although expansion has been extremely slow, a national survey has been carried out through the Central Office during the last four years.

The government of the organization is centralized through a Central Office located at Atlanta, Georgia, and a yearly convention in which all chapters participate legislates on important changes and measures affecting the organization.

The fraternity issues a quarterly known as the Rose Leaf and a monthly esoteric publication, The Alt. The first named, during the early years of the fraternity, was issued irregularly, but in recent years has been published regularly.

KAPPA NU

Founded at the University of Rochester, 1911.

Upsilon Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1931.

Kappa Nu was founded at the University of Rochester, November 11, 1911, by Joshua Bernhardt, Harold Levy, Joseph Lazarus, Louis Gottlieb, Agraaham Leve, and Morris Lazarshon, who had as their ideals, Cooperation, Unity, Sacrifice, Brotherhood, and Altruism.

The organization, due to a policy of internal strengthening expanded slowly, until at the present time it has twenty chapters, situated throughout the United States. In 1931 the Upsilon Chapter was established on this campus. Thus Kappa Nu brings to Arkansas the first Jewish national fraternity. The chapter previously existed as the Phi Epsilon local fraternity which was organized in 1930.

The government of the fraternity is vested in an executive committee and a judicial committee, consisting of graduate members, delegates from each chapter, and the National Officers. The national headquarters are maintained at Rochester, New York. Alumni chapters are also situated throughout the country.

A national convention is held annually, to which all chapters send delegates. Publications are: The Kappa Nu, a biannual magazine, The Reporter, the confidential bulletin of the National Fraternity which is published monthly, the monthly Chapter Bulletins, the Kappa Nu Song Book, and the Directory.

SORORITIES

In the rough old days of 1873 and thereabouts it was a common practice for the men students of the University to carry concealed weapons. The practice was apparently common and not considered a grave offense by the authorities nor a breach of etiquette by the ladies.

WOMEN'S PANHELLENIC

The Women's Panhellenic Association of the University of Arkansas is composed of two representatives from each sorority on the campus. At present there are seven organizations belonging to the Association.

The purpose of the Association is to regulate rushing and other interfraternity matters, to promote cooperation and good feeling between the chapters, and to work together for the good of the University and its women students.

Once each year the Association holds an open meeting for all sorority girls. On these occasions some national officer of a society makes an address.

Until 1927 sorority rushing was a grave problem on the University of Arkansas campus, and the Women's Panhellenic undertook to remedy the defective system then in effect. Under the present system of rushing there is little or no friction between the sororities.

Miss Martha Reid, Dean of Women at the University, is the faculty advisor for the Association, and to her should be given much credit for the success of its administration. Meetings of the Panhellenic are held once a month in the office of the Dean of Women, with Miss Reid present.

CHI OMEGA

Founded at the University of Arkansas, 1895.

Psi Chapter.

Chi Omega was organized at the University of Arkansas April 5, 1895, by Ina Mae Boles, Jobelle Holcombe, Alice Carey Simmonds, and Jeanne Marie Vincenheller. They were assisted in planning their organization by Dr. Charles Richardson, Kappa Sigma, who, in consideration of this service, was made sole honorary member.

There are at present 87 active chapters and two inactive. The total membership is now about 16,000.

The open declaration of Chi Omega is "Hellenic Culture and Christian Ideals." Included in the program of the fraternity is the Service Fund, the income of which is used to publish special research studies in educational, social, scientific, or civic lines.

The Chi Omega memorial theatre was erected in the spring of 1930 on the Arkansas campus.

Situated on over one hundred acres of its own land in eight well-equipped buildings, the school offers work covering eleven grades. It has an enrollment of nearly 150 and a teaching staff of nine members. Total assets of the Settlement School are now $81,000.

Arkansas Alpha Chapter of Pi Beta Phi was founded at the University of Arkansas in 1909. A new $40,000 home was completed in February of 1931. The publication is "The Arrow."

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Founded at Boston University, 1888.

Delta Iota Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1913.

Delta Delta Delta was founded at Boston University, Thanksgiving Eve, 1888. The founders, Eleanor Dorcas Pond and Ida Shaw Martin, on that day associated with them twenty undergraduates and organized as a national sorority. The spirit of Delta Delta Delta has so been shared that there are now seventy-six college chapters and eighty alumnae chapters in the United States and Canada. Delta Delta Delta now numbers in its membership more than 15,000 women.

The local chapter of Delta Delta Delta, Delta Iota, was granted a charter November 15, 1913. The anniversary of the chapter is celebrated annually by the return of Tri Deltas from all parts of the state to the chapter house for the Delta banquet given on that day.

Delta Delta Delta sponsors three endowment funds, the National Endowment Fund, the Trident Endowment Fund, and the Visiting Endowment Fund. The sorority is now building up a Thanksgiving Endowment Fund which is to be used for altruistic purposes among college women to further higher education. The three publications of Delta Delta Delta are the Trireme, the Triglyph, and the Trident. The sorority also publishes a song book to which the local chapter has made several contributions.

PHI MU

Founded at Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia, 1852.

Alpha Beta Chapter Established at the University of Arkansas, 1923.

Phi Mu is the second oldest secret organization for women in United States. It was founded at Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia, on January 4, 1852, and was announced to the world on March 4, 1852. Phi Mu now has sixty collegiate chapters and forty-four alumnae associations with 8,000 alumnae.

The Phi Mu Fraternity selected the health-mobile in Georgia as its outstanding piece of philanthropic work and it stands unique as fraternity work. To have given such a contribution to her mother state was not only a noble idea, but it has proven a splendid piece of substantial medical missionary work. The health-mobile, with the name Phi Mu painted on its side, spreads a light of good-will and hope of health to many thousands in Georgia who see it pass, or who take advantage of its beneficial work; and it holds the name of Phi Mu as a beacon light to all organizations aspiring to religious, missionary, or idealistic work. To the Phi Mus it brings a thrill of pride and gratitude.

In addition a $1,000 scholarship is offered each year to the Association for College Women of America. Any girl is eligible for this loan, irrespective of her fraternity, or whether she is a fraternity member or not.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

HONORARY ORGANIZATIONS

Around 1890 the discipline of the University was left in the hands of the commandant of the military unit. Punishment was rather severe and sometimes bordered outside the realm of conversational remonstrance. One of the customs inaugurated by the military men in charge at the time was "guard duty." Male students were required, in turn, to stand duty during the night in guard over the campus and to challenge all who passed.

Prior to the installation of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at the University on April 4, 1932, Skull and Torch has been the outstanding organization, as regards scholarship, in the Arts and Science college. Its standards have been high and consistently maintained. As a predecessor to the older and more pretentious Phi Beta Kappa it has been a thorough and exacting sponsor of scholarship.

Blue Key, honor fraternity, was founded at the University of Florida in October, 1924, by Major Bert C. Riley. A national organization was established in February, 1925. Blue Key recognizes outstanding qualities in character, scholarship, student activities, leadership, and service. Membership is composed of graduate and undergraduate students of all departments of American colleges and universities. Honorary membership is extended to a limited number of faculty members and alumni. The fraternity is committed to cooperate with the faculty; to study student problems; stimulate progress and promote the interests of the institutions where it has chapters.

The badge is an oblong key of gold on the surface of which appears a spreadeagle; in the mouth of the eagle is a wreath; at the feet, on the lower point of the cross, is a star. Outside of the oval in which these symbols appear, the corners of the key are brilliant azure blue.

Tau Beta Pi is an honorary society founded at Lehigh University, June, 1885, under the leadership of Professor E. H. Williams, Jr. Its purpose is to confer distinction upon those students who have maintained a high grade of scholarship and to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering students in the institutions in which its chapters are located.

When a chapter is established it may confer its key upon its alumni and students of earlier years in analogy to a similar custom in Phi Beta Kappa. Membership may be offered to graduates of engineering colleges where there is no chapter, provided the recipient has fulfilled the regular eligibility requirements as a student. Membership of distinction may be conferred upon prominent engineers who may or may not already be members of the society.

Alpha Chapter has been active since its establishment at the University of Arkansas in 1914. Election is considered one of the highest honors that can be bestowed upon an engineer.

Alpha Chi Sigma, honorary chemical fraternity, was founded at the University of Wisconsin in December, 1902. Its membership is drawn from students of chemistry who intend to make some phase of chemistry their life work. Members of undergraduate fraternities are admitted.

From the date of its foundation to 1922, the fraternity was made up of collegiate chapters and alumni chapters, but during the above mentioned year there was a reorganization of the fraternity into two general branches, one of them consisting of the collegiate chapters and the other of the professional chapters. Members of the latter are professional chemists who have been elected in the collegiate chapters.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honorary fraternity that encourages high scholastic standing for first year students. In order to be eligible for membership, a student must make at least a 5.00 point average for either the first semester of his freshman year, or for the entire year.

The local chapter was installed February 14, 1931, by Dean Herbert Smith of Illinois University. The original membership was 13; and enrollment now of 23 shows the remarkable effect which the organization has had upon the scholarship of the freshman.

Scholarship, development of Agriculture, and brotherhood among members may be listed among the purposes of Alpha Zeta, National Honorary Agricultural Fraternity. During this school year, 1931 and 1932, Arkansas Chapter has listed to its credit several achievements of note.

Each year the Arkansas Chapter presents two loving cups. One is given to the highest grade point Agricultural freshman who returns to college the succeeding year as a sophomore. The other cup is given as a sweepstakes prize to the winning team in the State Vocational Agricultural Contest sponsored by Alpha Zeta in cooperation with the Agricultural Education Department.

Arkansas chapter was founded in 1917. It numbers among its alumni some of the most prominent Agricultural workers in the South.

Octagon, local honorary organization for outstanding senior women, was founded at the University of Arkansas in May, 1929, but did not make an official appearance on the campus until the following school year, when the members met, elected officers, and drew up a constitution.

The organization was begun under the leadership of Miss Martha Reid, Dean of Women, who has held up before the eyes of the group a prospect of Mortar Board, a national organization for outstanding women.

The name, Octagon, was chosen by the local group from the fact that there were eight members originally selected, and the group has determined to adhere to the practice of pledging only one from each of the seven sororities and Carnall Hall. The purpose of the organization is to develop and encourage in young women the qualities of service, leadership, and scholarship.

BLACKFRIARS

The Arkansas chapter of Blackfriars, the national dramatic fraternity founded at the University of Arkansas in 1913, finished its nineteenth year with a performance of "Gold in the Hills," an amusing and rowdy melodrama of the late nineties. The play was presented in May in the Chi Omega Theatre on the campus, and the club was assisted by the Play Production Class and University Music Department. Period costumes and the general atmosphere of tent-show and show-boat days added to a successful performance.

Blackfriar members participated in the presentation of Ibsen's "A Doll's House," which the Play Production Class sponsored in October, a sincere and worthy attempt to interpret a serious play. The drama was modernized by costumes of our times and a setting of more charm than is ordinarily considered proper for Ibsen, but was otherwise unchanged. Fanchon Sims Olliver gave an interesting conception of the role of Nora, and Fletcher Brewer was particularly well-cast as Krogstad. The play was directed by Russell Burnett.

The pledges of Blackfriars were responsible for a performance of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," which, reversing the procedure of "A Doll's House," the staging attempted to reproduce the theatre of 1896, when this comedy of manners was first given. Fanchon Sims Olliver directed this singularly pleasant and colorful play.

The Blackfriars One-Act Play contest was revived, and the encouraging number of manuscripts received are being judged. To prevent favoritism, it was required that plays be submitted under a nom de plume.

Rehearsals of "The Second Man," by S. N. Behrman, were halted to give the members ample time to produce "Gold in the Hills," and the former play will be given next fall.

The retiring officers are Charles Steel, president; Martha Warren, vice-president; Henry Fancher, vice-president; Lesterree George, secretary; Charlotte Walls, treasurer.

Phi Alpha Delta was founded in Chicago, Illinois, November 8, 1902. It was the outgrowth and reorganization of a fraternity of law students known as Lambda Epsilon, founded in 1897. Membership is limited to students of law at the various accredited law schools where chapters are located. Students belonging to general college fraternities are admitted. Members of the legal profession who have attained distinction, upon the approval of the national executive board, are eligible to honorary membership by special election and initiation through local chapters.

Names of the chapters are in honor of some celebrated lawyer or jurist. Garland chapter was founded at the University of Arkansas in 1919. It was named for Augustus H. Garland, the only man from Arkansas to be in a President's cabinet. He served as Attorney-General in President Cleveland's administration.

Theta Tau was founded at the University of Minnesota on October 15, 1904, and was known as "Hammer and Tongs" until 1911. The Greek letters have always appeared on its badge. It was from the beginning intended to be a professional general engineering fraternity to inculcate high ethical and professional standards and to foster close fraternal relations among its members. Membership is limited to students of engineering of "personal worthiness and of promising engineering ability." Its scholastic standards are high. It does not permit its members to join other engineering fraternities, either general or departmental, except honorary scholastic organizations, but admits membership in collegiate social fraternities.

Upsilon Chapter, which was established at the University of Arkansas in 1928, was fortunate in being able to entertain at Fayetteville the Tenth National Biennial Convention on December 29, 30, and 31, 1931.

CLUBS

Because it was claimed to be a rich man's school the University of Arkansas was attacked by the state legislature in 1887 for not stressing agricultural and mechanical subjects in place of classical courses. This movement against President Edgar and the existing University was led by the agrarian party both in the higher courts of the state and in the legislature. The very life of the University was threatened with the passing of a bill to provide facilities for agricultural and mechanical courses at the expense of the classical subjects.

The courses of study, however, were arranged by the faculty, despite the law, to include numerous and sufficient subjects in classical studies.

The "A" Club, whose membership is restricted to those who have been awarded the coveted "A" for participation in sports, was reorganized in 1922, and has since that time endeavored to function for the best interest of the University. It attempts to do this by fostering a spirit of loyalty for the University among the students, which it hopes will continue throughout their lives and eventually spread to all of Arkansas' citizenry.

The Home Economics Club is one of the largest student organizations on the Arkansas campus, with membership open to all girls enrolled in the Home Economics Department. It is affiliated in the State and American Home Economics Associations, the only professional organizations dealing solely with home economics problems.

The club meets monthly. Its purposes are to encourage high standards in economics work and to promote friendship and social activity among its members.

The Press Club is the live-wire of journalistic activity in the University. Numerous banquets and other social get-togethers are held by the group during the year. Perhaps the outstanding feature of the organization is the Gridiron Banquet which it sponsors each spring.

The Club is composed of those men who have had actual study and experience in journalism.

The Menorah is a society open for all students. Its purpose is the study of Jewish thought and literary creations, which will enable the student to become able to adjust himself more easily to the complex situations he will have to face in later life. The Menorah believes in free and open-minded study and discussion, because only through these mediums can students arrive at intelligent and unbiased opinions.

The society, under the able leadership of its president, Mac L. Levine, had a most prosperous year. Its membership has increased many fold over that of preceding years and correspondence has been carried on with many of the leading chapters of the country. There is no doubt that the society is a firmly established fixture on the University campus.

The club has had as its guests several prominent men who addressed them on issues that were of national concern. Among these men were Vincent M. Miles, Former Governor Charles Brough, and Judge George Vaughan.

This club is a member of the national system organized by the last Democratic National Convention and it is promulgating the doctrines of the national party. The membership is limited to young people of over 21 years who wish to become affiliated with the organization.

Deutscher Verein completes its third year since its reorganization in 1929, following a period of inactivity after 1917. It has regained the prestige and usefulness it enjoyed before the war, and its monthly programs, featuring lectures and short talks in German, German songs, burlesques and plays, are attended by faculty and townspeople as well as members. Membership includes students who have made a grade of B or better in the first semester German. An annual banquet is given in the spring.

Pi Mu Epsilon has grown out of the Math Club, an organization founded at the University of Arkansas on February 11, 1919, by a group of students interested in mathematics. The group was under the direction of Dr. W. L. Miser. The fraternity exists as a laboratory media for the study of higher mathematics.

Among the charter members of the club are A. M. Harding and Davis P. Richardson. E. E. Stevenson, president of the club in 1922, was the reciprocant of a Rhodes scholarship.

Pi Mu Epsilon requires a candidate for membership to have an average of 4.00 in mathematics. The organization is recognized on the Arkansas campus as a lively one—serving a purpose beyond merely offering itself as another organization for someone to belong to.

The Agri Day Association was organized in 1917 and since that time there has been an annual celebration sponsored by Agricultural students. For the first few years Agri Day was given in the form of a carnival or fair, featuring exhibits of the various departments, a parade, and the Agri Ball. The celebration was held in the fall of each year until after the World War when the enrollment increased and new features were added to the Day.

Besides sponsoring the events of Agri Day which now comes late in April of each year the Association sponsors a fall "Barnwarmin'" given soon after the school year begins, and an annual spring picnic and "Barn dance" at the University farm all of which involve considerable capital and cooperative effort on the part of all Agricultural students.

The Endowment also sends speakers who are recognized for their ability in the field of international relations.

The local club has a membership of 25 and holds meetings every two weeks at which topics of world interest are discussed either informally or in accordance with a pre-arranged program with a view to increasing interest in this field and promoting a better understanding of the conditions which govern the modern world.

The club also sent Arthur Frankel as a delegate to the Conference of International Relations Clubs held at Oklahoma University in April.

The Branner Geology Club, named in honor of Dr. J. C. Branner, former State geologist, was organized on February 5, 1925, by five geology majors for the purpose of promoting interest in geology among the student body.

Meetings are held each month at which subjects of geological interest are discussed and original papers presented. The chief requirement for membership is an active interest in geology, the importance of which few students realize.

The club takes a field trip once each year, with a view of increasing interest in the Club itself, and for the benefit of the members.

Rootin' Rubes was organized in 1925 for the purpose of fostering all University activities and to encourage college spirit and loyalty among the students. It was organized as a little sister club to the A. B. C.'s. Its membership is composed of representatives of all University women, three of its members being chosen from each sorority, and five from Carnall Hall.

The Rootin' Rubes, together with the Arkansas Booster Club, have founded a pep squad composed of five members from each campus group. It is hoped that this auxiliary will ameliorate cheering conditions at the University.

The club also functions socially. At various times during the year, the members serve tea at the Y. W. C. A. room in the University. All three-letter athletes are presented blankets by the organization.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers, a national organization, has as members professional engineers and a large number of students. Any student who is actively interested in electrical engineering is eligible for membership.

The purpose of the national organization is to promote the interests of the profession. It plays an important part in establishing and maintaining professional standards as well as the industrial standards with which it is concerned. Through its student branches it helps the student engineer while in school and helps him become established as a professional engineer after graduation.

The student branch at the University of Arkansas gives the student engineer an opportunity to associate with others who are interested in this branch of engineering.

The Poetry Club is an organization composed of students interested in writing and studying poetry. It meets once every two weeks to read and discuss verse. Membership is based on the merit of poetry submitted to the club.

The club was organized in 1926, largely through the efforts of Mr. Laurence F. Hawkins, an instructor in English at the University, and Mrs. Rosa Zagnoni Marinoni, a poetess of national recognition, who lives in Fayetteville. Mrs. Marinoni has continued to be the inspiring genius of the club since the departure of Mr. Hawkins.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers is a national organization composed of practicing engineers. The National Society has student branches in all leading Engineering colleges for students who are interested in mechanical engineering.

The National Society celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in 1930 and the feature program of the year for the student branch was one in honor of the birthday of A. S. M. E.

Members of the local chapter carry on research work, present papers, and show pictures on the screen which are of engineering interest. This year the group had an actual locomotive on display during Engineer's Day.

The General Engineering Society has been under the capable leadership of Harold D. Albrecht during this academic year. The society drew up a new constitution to replace the ancient ruling document during the present year. G. E. S. also celebrated St. Pat's Day with the greatest celebration in years. Robert Atkins, as St. Pat, and Miss Betty Sherrill, as Engineer's Queen, ruled over the twenty-fifth Engineer's Day which was closed by the annual ball with music by Ralph Bennett's Seven Aces. The organization also re-organized and re-financed the Arkansas Engineer and as a result of the interest shown has made its continuance almost certain for many years to come. This is the first year that the society has operated under the new system of collecting dues, which seems to have met with the unanimous support from the student body.

BOOK - VIII

"Jus' whut IS two an' fo'?"

TO be taught solely by the President of a University himself is an honor. One man and only one in the history of the University of Arkansas has been given this unprecedented attention. A negro was admitted to the University in 1873. President Gates was forced by law to accept his registration. However, he required the colored man to study in an outhouse during school hours, and after school he personally heard the recitation.
